REC 110 – Archways Wilderness Experience

"A practical introduction to adventure camping and group participation"

Interested students can gain academic credit through the Archways program. This 1 credit recreation elective is optional for any Archways participant. This credit will not be added to your transcript unless you choose to do the added academic work and fill out the necessary forms at the registrar's office during the first week of classes.

Students seeking academic credit will be graded according to a skills checklist while on the trip, a paper covering a wilderness textbook and a reflection paper describing their experience. The papers will be due later in the semester and the students may be required to meet as a class 2-3 times during the first semester in addition to the two reunion events with all Archway participants.

There is no additional cost to receive academic credit as long as students are taking less than 18 credit hours. All students planning on taking the Archways course for academic credit must inform the Archways director (Andy Bathje) on or before arrival for the Archways trip. This course work does not count toward the general education requirements of 2 PE credits.

I am interested in taking the Archways Wilderness Experience for Academic credit.
