It is the desired goal that every program provide sufficient revenues to cover its administrative overhead. Typically, this means that 10% to 20% of the program revenues should remain unspent or unallocated in order to cover program administrative expenses, such as insurance, accounting, registrar, executive and general administrative expenses.