

50th Anniversary of the 1970 Revival

Hughes Auditorium doesn't look much different than it did 50 years ago. Inside, you see the same wooden seats and the same altar. You hear the same echoes.

But on Feb. 3, 2020, something was different. The view from the balcony told you so.

Among those gathered for 10 a.m. chapel, you noticed an unusual number of graying heads dotting the student section on the lower level. The visitors were here to tell stories, to remember and to bear witness to what happened in this room half a century ago – when God came.

The Salvation Army Renews Partnership with Asbury

Asbury University and The Salvation Army are proud of having worked side-by-side for over 100 years, sharing the Good News and providing critical resources to those in need across the globe. For the past five years, the two institutions have collaborated in a special way, with Asbury providing an online degree completion program for Salvation Army officers across the Eastern Territory. This month, the two institutions renewed their partnership with the signing of an agreement that will extend this close collaboration into the coming decade.
